This Week's Self-Revelization Acceptance

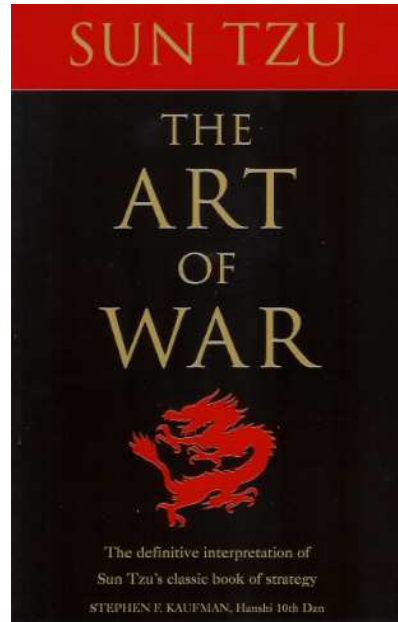

How to use Self-Revelization Acceptance is explained on the last page of this newsletter.

I Develop Intensity of Desire

I accept my good bounty as I watch all of my marvelous desires delivered to me in completion according to my specific definitions. I prepare myself emotionally, psychologically, intellectually, and spiritually for the excellent pleasure of living my life by my Divine Right to Live in Joy and Freedom that permits my desires to unfold once I have set them in motion with my Self-Revelization Acceptance. By preparing myself adequately to accept my abundance I am cautious not to recite meaningless incantations to cajole the Spirit of the Thing Itself into thinking that I may want something without thoroughly executing my intelligence. I know that by focusing on my desire without restriction I can illuminate my consciousness to bring about quicker and more functional results for anything I desire. By envisioning me experiencing and enjoying the fruits of my efforts through developed Self-Revelization Acceptance authority, this happens with more ease and grace than ever before. I take control of my estimations and demand of myself and the Spirit of the Thing Itself to make manifest in my life, without hesitation or delay, full revealizations on my behalf brought about my ardent desire to have them. Remaining focused on my soon to be revealed experiences before me enables me become more intense with my desire to experience them and to permit them to grow with smoldering passion. The results of my desire and the intensity of my desire has no choice but to immediately bring about what I want based on the conviction that I am deserving of the result. I live the reality that I already own my desire because I am able to see myself as the recipient of the gifts I claim for myself. The authority of my words in this Self-Revelization Acceptance empowers me to move forward in understanding of my motives for accomplishment making my preparations for achievement simpler and more robust. The complexity of my desires are simplified further by my preparations and redefinitions required for the manifestation of my true good. I do not overburden my consciousness by demanding more than one thing at a time and realizing that enabling myself to further my own cause. The words become more profound; they become more penetrating into my soul as I put more and more emphasis into them while repeating them with ever more conviction and intensity. I give total and complete thanks to the Creative Power of the universe as I move forward in my life with ever more clarity of thought and clarity of purpose as the benefits of my desire manifest for the benefit of all concerned.

This week's excerpt:
The Art of War

Estimates and Considerations Prior to Conflict
Book One, Part One

Conflict is essential to the development of society and the preparedness for it leads to either construction or destruction of an entire society. You should understand this concept without question. If you do not understand the need for conflict then you should not be in control of the society you purport yourself to be in charge of. It is also essential to the development of an individual and one's personal goals. If there is no conflict; internal or external, then there can be no growth. Conflict does not always mean physical combat. Be prepared by understanding the controls required to develop your own particular agenda. You must see the need for battle if you wish to develop your own cause, on any level.

As well, battle is not always violent. A Warlord must understand the tools they have to wage war with. They must understand the men they are using and they must have the presence of mind to be able to give orders without hesitation regardless of the outcome. Previous thought and proper readiness will generally insure a successful campaign.

The reality of life and the attitudes of the fates play an important role. You cannot know if you will be successful or not. You can only prepare for the good fight with all of your heart and with all of your consciousness. That way you will have the edge in a war.

It is stupid to fight a battle that you cannot win. Being unprepared will always bring defeat. The fates will determine the outcome according to the extent of your own personal beliefs and faith. Nothing more, nothing less. Improper weapons placed in the hands of improper soldiers will result in defeat because of the lack of consideration given to the matter by the leader. Choose your weapons well and thoroughly. Understand their nature. Choose your men with more care. Cling them to your breast; nurture them and care for them. They will not fail you under these conditions. Never betray them regardless of your anger at their mistakes.

Think of the following five ideas with deep concentrations and understanding. They are the essence of initial conflict preparedness and must be thoroughly studied by warlords and their commanders.

THE HANSHI READER®

1 - Morality of the project: what it is you wish to accomplish and why. Do your captains and lieutenants agree with your desires and can the matter be taken to the final point by all concerned on your staff? Do they believe strongly enough in the ideal to sacrifice everything that has to be sacrificed for the accomplishment of the project? Do they believe in you as a leader? Do you believe in you as a leader? If everything is in balance then proceed to the next step. If not, rethink your attitudes and desires.

2 - The atmosphere of the general attitude: are the times correct, are you properly prepared? Have you considered alternatives to the plan of operation? Can you control the needs of your troops with regards to their sustenance and in so doing prevent them from seeing otherwise and turning on you in mutinous fashion, perhaps killing you while doing so. Are you capable of standing alone when necessary?

3 - The place of combat is of extreme importance. Can you control the sources of supply? Is the area of conflict appropriate to your endeavors? Is there easy access to entrance and possible exit if necessary? Will there be room to renegotiate a situation should it become necessary in order to protect the overall condition of your plan? Can you escape? If not, then you must rethink the area of conflict and put it to your advantage as much as possible if the battle must be fought.

4 - Do you have control of those who will wish to be in charge when you have taken control of your new destiny? Will those you delegate to be able to deal with the new responsibilities thrust upon them? Do your troops consider you to be compassionate, strong and yet fair, humane and truly concerned for their welfare? If they do not then you will never be able to put your plans into motion. The same goes for an individual's personal goals. If you will do anything you feel is necessary, irrespective of the feelings of others that do not agree with you then they will wish you harm. To accomplish your goals, you must consider the reaction of those you are involved with that are not being taken into consideration of your ultimate plan. Even if they believe in you, they will interfere because they know you are not keeping their well being in mind. If you lie to them they will know that too. Their attempts at revenge will be sweeter.

5 - The general philosophy of the ideal you wish to make manifest must be well in place before any physical action is taken. Are those being deposed or reassigned able to maintain dignity? Have you provided for their needs if you are unable to crush them resolutely? Are the men you are giving authority to able to deal with the charges they are assigned to? Do not put someone in charge of the warehouse if he only cares about physical combat. Is everyone truly content in their given tasks? Do you praise and admonish with the same intensity? Do you play favorites among your men? Anything you do that is not built on balance will eventually topple causing you great grief. Treat all of your staff as equals and permit each member of your staff to know they are special in their place. That way no one will try to take assumptions of command and undermine your progress. See that your staff treats their men in the same fashion as you have them treated by yourself.

How to use Self-Revealization Acceptance

A Self-Revealization Acceptance is constructed for the simple purpose of bringing a specific result into a practitioner's life. Any of the ideas presented in my weekly example can be structured for your own desires. When the ideas of relationships, creativity, love, and finances are addressed you should use your own definitions to enhance the positive acceptance of an ever-growing good in your life. REMEMBER, Self-Revealization Acceptances are NOT affirmations. They are based on your positive acceptance of the good you want to experience in your life and therefore only YOUR words and YOUR authority activate the Spirit of the Thing Itself. Self-Revealization Acceptance is a philosophical approach to reality facilitation. Your reality and not the reality of someone else. Self-Revealization Acceptance absolutely is for an individual and personal manifestation REGARDLESS of what anyone outside of you think in relation to what you are accepting for. Fill the blanks with your own ideas and feel free to forward any questions or comments.
